

Global Health Scholarships

The UIC School of Public Health Global Health Program is now accepting applications for all Global Health Scholarships. The Global Health Program offers several scholarships to offset the costs associated with conducting an international field experience. The scholarships are open to students in all degree programs unless otherwise noted.

*Strong preference given to students that travel abroad***

General Eligibility Requirements

The applicant must:

- Be a graduate or professional student at the UIC School of Public Health
- Have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or better (4.0 scale)
- Preference will be given to students traveling abroad
- Should they be selected:
  - Provide a post-experience report within two weeks of return or project completion.
  - Attend the SPH Annual Research and Awards Day in the spring semester of the award.
  - Prepare and present a poster on the experience at the annual SPH Global Health Poster Competition within Research and Awards Day in the spring following project completion.
  - Purchase emergency evacuation insurance for travel abroad if traveling.
  - Enroll in the university's International Travel Safety (ITS) portal if traveling

Scholarship Descriptions and Specific Eligibility Requirements

- Donna Farley Global Health Scholarship
  - Preference for students who demonstrate financial need and/or a commitment to addressing global health issues and challenges.
- Douglas Passaro Global Horizons Scholarship
  - This scholarship honors the memory of Dr. Douglas James Passaro. The award reflects his intense interest in addressing international public health problems worldwide. Most competitive applications will be from students seeking an experience that substantially broadens their understanding and application of public health in the world. Preference is given to proposals for projects in Latin America and Africa.
- Dr. Scholl Foundation Scholarship for Advancing Global Human Rights and Environmental Justice
  - This scholarship defrays the costs of international travel for efforts focused on advancing advocacy and scholarship in environmental health and human rights. Applications will be considered for academic research or fieldwork best demonstrating efforts to advance global human rights and environmental justice.
- MPH/MS Global Health Scholarship
  - Only available to MPH or MS students formally enrolled in the global health curriculum.

*More details, including sample project descriptions for prior awardees, are available on the global health website:

Application Packet

The applicant must submit:

- A completed Global Health Awards application form (page 3).
- A cover letter describing the proposed global health experience in detail and a statement, including expected learning objectives, describing how the experience will enrich the applicant's exposure to global health. The letter must include the name and contact information of the International Host Organization, and the applicant's plan for communication and collaboration, including frequency of meetings with supervisor, communication platform, and opportunities for organizational and cultural exposure. Students must also briefly describe previous international experience and identify which scholarship they feel the project aligns with. (The statement should be no more than two pages).
- A budget estimating total travel expenses, if applicable (page 4). Please include any other sources of financial support that would be used to help offset the total cost of the experience.
- A letter (or email) from the Host Organization outlining the parameters and expectations for the experience (required for MPH students; if applicable for other graduate students).

- A letter from the applicant’s UIC advisor for the experience vouching for the applicant’s capacity for taking full advantage of this experience and stating her/his willingness to serve as a contact at UIC for the student.
- A statement about the language spoken at the proposed destination regarding the applicant’s foreign language proficiency (speaking, reading, writing), if applicable (page 5).
- A copy of the applicant’s UIC academic history (unofficial transcripts available from <https://my.uic.edu>).

NOTE: You must be in good financial standing to receive this award. Receiving this award may affect your financial aid package. We encourage you to contact Student Financial Aid Services to determine your financial standing.

Special considerations for summer 2024:

Due to the pandemic, travel guidance for the destination may be quickly impacted by COVID-19 and U.S. State Department travel restrictions. As such, students are highly encouraged to identify an alternative option for their field experience. Scholarship applications for local and virtual placements will be considered, but priority will be given to applications for experiences abroad. Students are welcome to identify a field-based project as well. For those who have identified both options, students should complete an application for both projects.

For Travel to Countries with U.S. Department of State Level 3 Travel Advisories (“Reconsider Travel”) or CDC Travel Warnings:

In order to complete your International Travel Safety enrollment, if you are traveling to a country for which the Department of State has issued a Travel Advisory “Level 3” or the CDC has issued a Travel Warning, students will have to petition to travel to destinations reviewed by the Vice Provost for Global Engagement with the assistance of the relevant academic unit and the Study Abroad Office. Students planning to travel to countries with U.S. Department of State Level 3 Travel Advisories (“Reconsider Travel”) or CDC Travel Warnings must consult with the Global Health Program for assistance with the petition.

For more information on the travel petition, please visit <https://oge.uic.edu/student-petition-for-travel-to-certain-countries/>

*Students should NOT purchase airline tickets or other components of their travel until all materials have been submitted and the Office of Global Engagement approves their request.
